

The background of the entire image is a textured, mottled blue-grey color. Overlaid on this is a network of thick, black, hand-drawn lines. These lines intersect to form a series of irregular, elongated triangular and polygonal shapes, creating a geometric pattern that resembles a stylized web or a network of paths. The lines vary in thickness and orientation, giving the pattern a dynamic, organic feel.

Sargasso fulfills many functions. This enlightened information we learned through a poll taken fall term 1971. This year we tried to give the people what they said they wanted. In the following pages you shall find candida galor, a thorough section of seniors and faculty, an entertaining arts section, a fully detailed record of our sports events of the year and more. This is your 1972 yearbook. Thanks to Carol Anderson, Ralph Germer, and Bill Rees.

Earlham students and faculty meet to discuss possible action to be taken in response to President Nixon's on going escalation of the Viet Nam War. What is Earlham's testimony on peace? Students leaflet and interview members of the Richmond community. What are their feelings about the on going war? Meanwhile, a silent, peaceful vigil for peace is in process.

Concern is again ignited. Nixon's messages sets students participating in marches throughout the country.

Money which would normally be spent on food, for those students that turned in meal tickets, was contributed by Saga to funds for Bangla Desh.

Cagers finish 21-9, capture HBCC crown

For the third consecutive year Earlham finished with over twenty wins. In their first season of Hoosier-Buckeye College Conference competition the Quakers continued their dominance over Indiana teams, going 16-4 overall and 7-1 in the Indiana division of the HBCC. Earlham seemed destined for second place finishes as they captured second place in the Earlham, HBCC and District 21 Tourneys. Jerry Banks finished his Earlham career with eight school records and was again NAIA Honorable Mention All American, All Conference, All District, All Earlham Tourney and a member of the Indiana-Ohio Senior All-Star Game. Dave Gray was All Conference, All District, All Earlham Tourney and was the HBCC Tournament MVP and HBCC MVP. Joe Rosner was All HBCC Tourney and Wayne MacMillen was All HBCC Honorable Mention. For the fourth time in six years the Quakers were ranked in the NAIA's top 40.
